Themes
The subjects of the GEOTOUR & IRSE 2013, Wrocław and Złoty Stok (Poland) are geoparks, geoheritage, post-mining heritage and geoconservation (GEOTOUR) as well as the mining history of Central Europe (IRSE).
The main subject of GEOTOUR 2013 are strategies of bundling geotourist and geoheritage attractions. This means that the unique system of different short-term and long-term activities for taking advantage of these attractions should be prepared and implemented. This knowledge and experience platform may help geoparks and related organizations to maximize the market value of this special kind of geotourist products and help in solving and managing similar problems.
The main subject of IRSE 2013 is mining heritage and its protection. It includes geology, artefacts of various types, cultural processes and the setting of their time and place. Its management usually includes a synergic cooperation of a number of people and institutions. Legal aspects are important when e.g. earlier political decisions result in a need for certain cultural artefacts to be adapted to a new cultural environment without being disowned from the old cultural environment. As mining occurred in various rural, urban or larger districts and within Central Europe also across borders, necessary service level, comfort and safety that have to be warranted may need more effort to achieve. All these and related issues provide a wide platform for contributions and discussions coming from around the globe.
